A little bit outside of the city centre you'll find this large and abstract work by Ozon. Ozon is a Rotterdam based street artist whose work can be found all around the world. Located on a large wall, this piece is difficult to miss when walking down the Heer Bokelweg.

Close to central station you'll find a large work at the Diergaardesingel. The work consists of two canvases, so to say, and is completely done in red colours. The artist is Onesto, a Brazilian street artist. He leaves his mark all around the world and luckily didn't skip Rotterdam during his travels.

Here in the Gouvernestraat you can find a great piece by Lastplak. Lastplak is a group of around 9 painters who cheer up the streets across the Netherlands. However, their homebase is Rotterdam so besides this piece it's likely you'll come across more street art by Lastplak when walking around Rotterdam!

When walking down the Witte de With, you'll find some nice street art on the corner at the Boomgaardstraat. This bird themed piece is called 'Love birds' and is made by Melikepainting. Fun fact; the artist used this work to propose to his girlfriend at the time. They're now husband and wife! And if you like this work we recommend you visit the Melikepainting gallery at the Schuttersweg.

In the Hoornbrekerstraat you'll find a large piece called 'Tropical thunder' by Nasbami. The work covers a 140 square meter wall with 8 abstracted, everyday objects. The street artist has used pastel colours which makes the work look quite feminine and 'cute', in contrast to most street art. Tip: when walking down this street you can find some nice street art in side streets as well!

Here at the Ketelaarstraat you'll find a piece by Bier & Brood - a Rotterdam based art duo. This work is called 'The lab' and covers approximately 100 meters of wall. The high contrasted, black and white mural is a typical Bier & Brood artwork. When you come across another work of this street art duo you will immediately recognize it.

In the Eendrachtsstraat you can find a very nice piece by Telmo Miel, a street art duo. This work is called 'Don't say nothing' and portrays a kid with a cardboard box on her head. The work represents modern day kids, shutting themselves off from the outside world. And if you walk a bit further, you can also find another work by Bier & Brood!
