- All accepted articles become the EJM’s property and may not be published elsewhere without the EJM’s prior written permission.
- Authors may use parts of the article (e.g., tables, figures) in subsequent works without asking the EJM’s permission.
- For articles accepted for publication in an EJM journal, the author may cause the Accepted Version of the Work to be posted on the Web archive of a body that funded all or part of the Work, and/or an author’s institutional repository, provided that this post appears no sooner than 3 months after the EJM publishes the article in a journal and that the archive is publicly and noncommercially available via the World Wide Web.
- The “Accepted Version” means the paper includes peer review changes but not EJM’s copyediting and production changes.
- No sooner than 3 months after the EJM publishes the article” means at least 6 months after the first appearance of the article either on the EJM journal’s Web site as a publish-ahead-of-print article or on the EJM journal’s Web site published as part of a regular issue.

Authors hereby represent and warrant that

- they are the sole authors of the article,
- all authors have participated in and agree with the content and article’s conclusions,
- the article is original and does not infringe upon any copyright, proprietary, or personal right of any third party, and
- no part of it nor any article based on substantially similar data has been submitted to another journal for publication.

If the EJM does not publish this Work, the authors will be notified and all rights given to the EJM will revert to them. If this is a joint article, all coauthors must transfer rights in this article to the EJM by executing this Agreement. This Agreement must be executed as is without revision or substitution of terms. The author’s original, handwritten signature is required. This Agreement is governed by the laws of Netherlands.

2. Disclosure of Potential Conflicts of interest

The purpose of this section is to provide readers of your manuscript with information about your other interest that could influence how they receive and understand your work. Each author is responsible for the accuracy and completeness of the submitted information.

Conflicts of interest pertain to relationships with pharmaceutical companies, biomedical device manufacturers, or other corporations whose products or services are related to the subject matter of the article. Such relationships include, but are not limited to, employment by an industrial concern, ownership of stock, membership on a standing advisory council or committee, being on the board of directors, or being publicly associated with the company or its products. Other areas of real or perceived conflict of interest could include receiving honoraria or consulting fees or receiving grants or funds from such corporations or individuals representing such corporations. The corresponding author should collect Conflict of Interest information from all co-authors before submitting a manuscript.
